

Presentation Awards 2018

Hockey isn't all about the make of stick or the logo on your shoes, the fit of the shirt or the colour of the socks. It's about what you can gain, as a person...

"Seeking excellence."

I'm sure you've heard this a number of times whether at school or at home or on the pitch. Playing Hockey is one way in which we can develop this worthy value.

We seek excellence every time we step onto the pitch, promising ourselves that we will score a goal, keep a clean sheet or, at the very least, not run away screaming when the ball comes our way.

Whether you did or didn't score a goal, set someone up with a perfect pass or comforted a team mate who needed support, you are awesome and an inspiration.

Hockey helps us develop essential life skills such as teamwork, cooperation, tolerance and communication. Even if you don't want to pursue a career in sports, the hours of training will still have been worth every minute. The discipline you gain during training will help you tolerate annoying people or communicate with someone who just doesn't listen.

We also learn to deal with disappointment, make and accomplish goals, and of course, be outside rather than playing Fortnite or in front of a screen!

The qualities we learn through team games are the key skills we need in life.

Next time you talk yourself down after a tough game, just think how much you have achieved. After all, if it was easy, everyone would be able to do it.

This evening, we celebrate those who have shown true sportsmanship, not just on the field, but also behind the scenes.

Recognising and rewarding those who put themselves out there is very important, it shows how much we appreciated them in running our club.
